A burglary or burglary smashed the plate from the front door of Thomas Co. Jewelers in the early morning hours Tuesday and ended with an estimated $5,000 in rings. An inventory is ongoing across the Dillon Police Department.

"We have reason to believe there were two or three in the room," Tuesday afternoon. "They got about $5,000 in merchandise plus the cost to fix the door." The case defined have video-surveillance equipment.

The dispatch received a call at 4 a.m. in a break-in. A group of police from a nearby apartment had heard a door rattle and then heard an alarm. She assumed it was a car alarm but when she went down the street she noticed the broken glass and immediately called the police.

Craft and officers in the垂直横线, Seth Haggard were one minute from the frame when the police came over the radio and immediately covered the crime scene. At that time the burglars had fled.

Two large rocks were used in the commission of the crime. The rocks were found in the street outside the South Idaho Street store. Craft admits the first attempt to break in failed, and the rock bounced off the glass into the street. They tried again, the rock hit the door and left doily marks to rest after smashing through the glass.

Craft says the perpetrator appears to be someone who has done this before. The craft of thieves can be to the door.

The Craft the police say people are used to the door, except as there are no similar rocks in the area. The police have used a variety of rocks for prints, but because of the unusual nature of the prints, he doesn’t believe they were able to pull a viable print.

An empty ring box was found in the area of the crime scene. At that time the instigator, the persons who were in the building at the time, had fled the scene when the call came over the radio.

The Craft was the first to arrive when she got down to the street. A person from a nearby apartment had heard a noise and notified the police of the crime scene. At that time the burglars had fled.

The Craft said officers would be using a variety of techniques to investigate the crime, as there are no similar rocks in the area. The police have used a variety of rocks for prints, but because of the unusual nature of the prints, he doesn’t believe they were able to pull a viable print.

When they returned to Dillon, he joined his brother on the Dillon Volunteer Fire Department, a group he served for 25 years. He retired as a captain on the Dillon Volunteer Fire Department, a group he served for 25 years. He retired as a captain.

The hangout was held on an April Friday afternoon, in the wake of Tom Haggard's death. The hangout was <nong> a very good dinner paid for by the owner of Thomas Co.

As per Dillon Jaycee tradition, the previous year’s winner presents the next honored sounds as a selected a committee of the Dillon Jaycee. Mike Ferris, who was a year ago, awarded the GDA after previously winning the GDA. He opened his remarks with tales of Bergeson’s youth, when he would help his dad flush pines of the Dillon elderly, and more as a junior as a senior as projects like highway cleanup days.

Allen was recently elected vice president of the Montana Post-Secondary Educational Opportunities Council Board of Directors. The Montana Post-Secondary Educational Opportunities Council Board of Directors endorsed a plan to instead protect the Dillon Volunteer Fire Department's headworks structure, designed by engineer John Manion to protect the city's wastewater treatment plant's headworks, of midsize plants, which cost between $150,000 and $250,000 to build and install, according to City Council Director of Operations J. Turner.

The City Council considered a proposal to install a hatch and heavy insulation onto the current hatch and heavy insulation. The hatch and heavy insulation is expected to cost between $150,000 and $250,000 to build and install, according to City Council Director of Operations J. Turner.

"We will go and give it a shot to work before we buy everything new," said Councilperson and Water & Sewer Committee Chair and Council President Kevin Hodge in support of the plan along with Councilperson and Water & Sewer Committee Chair and Council President Kevin Hodge.

"I feel that people are already paying for the headworks," said Councilperson and Water & Sewer Committee Chair and Council President Kevin Hodge.

"We'll just keep that building service as long as we can," said Councilperson and Water & Sewer Committee Chair and Council President Kevin Hodge.

By Senator Bobby Bartlett (R-Dillon)

In Montana, the Legislature is responsible for establishing the state programs to address the public, while the Executive is charged with administering those programs. The statewide Medicaid funding is one such area where budget debates are held, and where we have seen a number of reforms. One of the key pieces of legislation that can be described as the bigger picture, was the Medicaid expansion bill. This bill, as you will know, has been the subject of a great deal of discussion over the past few months. The bill was introduced in the House of Representatives, and was passed by a comfortable margin. The Governor signed the bill into law, and it has now become a permanent part of the Montana Medical Assistance Program.

The Medicaid expansion bill was a significant piece of legislation that was passed by the Montana Legislature. It is designed to provide health insurance to low-income individuals and families. The expansion of Medicaid is a key component of the Affordable Care Act (ACA). The ACA was passed in 2010 and implemented in 2014, and it has been a major focus of policy discussions in recent years.

The Medicaid expansion bill was passed with the support of a broad coalition of stakeholders, including health care providers, advocacy groups, and the Montana Governor’s office. The bill was signed into law on May 14, 2014. It is now in effect, and it is expected to provide health coverage to an estimated 100,000 Montanans.

The Medicaid expansion bill includes a number of important provisions. It expands eligibility for Medicaid to include those with incomes up to 138% of the federal poverty level. It also provides for an expansion of the Medical Assistance Program to include those who qualify for Medicaid but are not eligible for MediTicket. The bill also includes provisions to help address the state’s budget deficit.

The Legislature has been asked to consider a number of proposals to help address the state’s budget deficit. One of these proposals is the Medicaid expansion bill. The bill was introduced in the Legislature in the spring of 2014, and it was passed by a comfortable margin.

Members of the Montana Legislature cast a vote Thursday on Senate Bill 334, the Medicaid expansion bill, that would open health care options for an estimated 74,000 low-income Montanans.

The bill passed 54-42. It will now move to the governor, U.S. Rep. Ryan Zinke, and Rep. Steve Gallaway, both Republicans, in the 2013 legislative session, which adjourned early last month.

Lawmakers advance Medicaid expansion, state budget

The Montana House of Representatives voted on Thursday to advance Senate Bill 334, the Medicaid expansion bill, that would open health care options for an estimated 74,000 low-income Montanans.

The bill passed 54-42. It will now move to the governor, U.S. Rep. Ryan Zinke, and Rep. Steve Gallaway, both Republicans, in the 2013 legislative session, which adjourned early last month.

Gov. Steve Bullock vetoed Senate Bill 309, carried by Sen. Rich Franklin, R-Burnt Hill, which would have authorized the Medicaid expansion. Bullock vetoed the bill, saying that it would have added more than $20 million in spending to the Senate and House budget.

Both senators and the governor were impressed by an amendment that was added to the Senate Bill 309, carried by Sen. Liev Jones, R-Conrad, and Sen. John Anderson, R-Culbertson, which would have provided tax relief to the hardest hit of the 2-year revenue shortfalls for schools.

Bullock vetoed Senate Bill 343, which would have increased the state minimum wage from $7.20 an hour to $9.50 an hour by 2017.

The bill lines out about $4 billion in general revenue, which would be used to expand the Affordable Care Act, asks the federal government for a one-time stimulus package for the state's uninsured, and expands Medicaid to people earning up to 138 percent of the federal poverty level. It accepts federal money for 80 percent of the expansion, and pushes the state to pay for the remaining 20 percent.

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare in Dillon, Montana, was recently named one of the "Top 100 Critical Access Hospitals" (CAHs) in the United States by the National Rural Health Association and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Barrett is one of a small number of hospitals that have contributed to our country's health care system, according to Director Terrell Bernall, CEO of the hospital.

"What really makes our business successful is the people we have hired," said Bernall, who has been with the company since its opening in 2005. "We have great people. Doing business is challenging. It's the same great people in the office, just a new name on the door."
Dillon sixth grader Bella Glossa takes top two prizes in Peeps Diorama Contest

By Jordan Peterson

It was a wonderful three-day spring break for students in the State of Montana, who are currently at home due to the coronavirus. But Bella Glossa was busy with her Peeps Diorama Contest entries. She was nominated for two prizes: first place for “Peep Lanes” and second place for “Peepers on the Beach.”

Bella’s 12-inch tall Diorama Contest entry, “Peep Lanes,” is only one of the dozen Peeps dioramas entered in the contest. “Peep Lanes” was the winning entry in the contest, while “Peepers on the Beach” was the runner-up.

Bella’s project centers on a Peeps store and a men’s and women’s fashion store. She created the diorama using Peeps, plastic containers, and a wall-sized mirror. The Peeps store has a black and white neon sign, a cash register, and a register with a credit card machine. Bella’s project also includes a scene of a man and woman walking on the street.

Bella said she went into Peeps Lane with a premeditated scheme on how to render a diorama of a bowling alley. “But ‘Peep Lanes’ more than anything is just about the fun you could have with your Peeps,” Bella said. She just sort of made up the scenes and filled it with more details and characters as she went along. She’s constantly working on art projects and has had a sort of studio space in their Dillon home where he says they continually make art projects, like the set of finding Admomar’s house in her summer with Peepsticks project.

Bella’s project was one of the two winners of the contest. The other winner was the diorama titled “Goblins and the Three Pin.”

Tips for a safe, long-lasting vehicle

Family Features — While driving a used vehicle off the lot sounds tempting, the financial commitment it brings is not an option for most families. Buying a new vehicle may not be a financially practical choice for a number of reasons. Taking good care of your car can not only improve its resale value but avoid unexpected repair costs. Here are a few tips that can help you keep your vehicle running smoothly:

1. Check all fluids, including engine oil, power steering, brake fluid, transmission and windshield washer solvent and antifreeze, if coolant.
2. Invest in a vehicle diagnostic system for quick, accurate repair.
3. Check the brake system annually and have the brake linings inspected and replaced, if necessary.
4. Check the tires, including the spare, for proper pressure and tread. Tires should be replaced every 5 years, regardless of tread wear.
5. Check the windshield wiper blades for cracks and wear.
6. Check the air filter and replace it at least once a year. A clogged filter can reduce engine performance and increase fuel consumption.
7. Check hoses and belts that are loose or cracked and replace them, if necessary.
8. Check the cooling system for leaks and replace the coolant regularly.
9. Check the oil level and replace the oil and filter at the recommended intervals.
10. Check the battery and replace it, if necessary.

When it comes to vehicle maintenance, the simple steps listed above can help keep your vehicle running smoothly and save you money in the long run.

Ready for a road trip?
Avoid breakdowns with a pre-trip vehicle check

Family Features — If your upcoming travel plans include a trip by car, take the time to make sure your vehicle is ready to travel. The following tips can help you avoid unwanted delays and repairs:

Double Coupons on the Decline

Super-Couponing Tips by Jill Cataldo

#JillCataldo save money by prepping for your grocery shopping in the weeks leading up to the double coupon expiration. You can’t use the same coupons, but you can use the same brands or items to get the savings. The week before expiration, it’s wise to focus on coupons that will save you the most money. For example, you can use the same Brand as a double coupon, but use a different store coupon.

The reason is to significant save money in your grocery bill in any area, whether you're shopping for seasonal or everyday items. Some of the major manufacturers offer double coupons, while others offer中国制造 coupons. Some offer both, and some offer double coupons or China coupons. So, it's wise to check out the deals in your area and choose the most cost-effective option.

Here are some tips on how to get the most out of your double coupons.

1. Start shopping for non-seasonal items. Non-seasonal items are items that you can buy year-round, such as canned vegetables, pasta, or bread. These items are usually less expensive than seasonal items, and you can use double coupons on them to save even more money.

2. Shop for items that are on sale. Many stores offer sales on specific items, and you can use double coupons to get an even better deal. For example, you might find that a particular brand of pasta is on sale, and you can use a double coupon to get a deep discount.

3. Shop for items that are on clearance. Clearance items are items that are marked down to get rid of them. You can use double coupons on clearance items to get an even better deal. For example, you might find that a particular brand of sauce is on clearance, and you can use a double coupon to get a deep discount.

4. Shop for items that are on sale at multiple stores. Many stores offer sales on specific items, and you can use double coupons to get an even better deal. For example, you might find that a particular brand of pasta is on sale at one store, but you can use a double coupon at another store to get a deeper discount.

5. Shop for items that are on sale at multiple stores. Many stores offer sales on specific items, and you can use double coupons to get an even better deal. Living room car wash?

Would you put off washing their car in your living room? Imagine what a mess would make!

Would you drive your car into a creek and wash it in the middle of the room? And well? That would make the creek dirty for the fish and animals and might cause them to get sick and die.

Clean Cars = Dirty Creeks?
If you firmly wash your car in the street or in a driveway and the water runs to the gutter and the storm drain, then all of the dirt, oil and pollutants that a car may contain are washed into your local creek. It’s like washing your car in the firefighting pond.

Do the math to discover which is the best way to wash your car:

1. Commercial drive-through car wash:

How many feet tall is the tree?

There are 12 inches in a foot. There are 552 inches in a tree. How many feet tall is the tree?

You will need:
- a soap vinegar
- 2 cups of natural liquid soap
- 2 cups of water
- a spray bottle
- clean rag
- soft cloth for buffing

Put the liquid ingredients into the spray bottle and shake. Spray a section of your car with the liquid and soap, removing the dirt and grime. For stubborn dirt, allow the liquid to sit for a few minutes before wiping off or use a non-abrasive kitchen scrub cloth. Use a soft cloth for buffing to a shine.
