Police being militarized all over nation

Constitutional lawyer John Yoo, who served as a Justice Department lawyer and now teaches at the University of California at Berkeley, published an article in the Cato Institute: "Why armored vehicles in Ferguson?"

The article explains that police departments are using federal dollars from the Department of Justice to purchase "state-of-the-art" equipment, which includes armored vehicles, aircraft, and other weapons.

Yoo argues that these expenditures are not justified by the need to protect the public, and that they are instead part of a "war on blacks" strategy. He cites examples of police departments that have used the money to purchase equipment that is more powerful and dangerous than what is actually needed to protect the public.

Yoo also notes that the use of federal funds to purchase equipment is illegal, and that the federal government should be held accountable for these expenditures.

Yoo concludes that the "war on blacks" strategy is not only illegal, but also counterproductive, as it leads to increased fear and mistrust between the police and the community.
